

PRESIDENT SPOKE TO GREAT CROWDS

High Praise for Industrial Schools—Best Crop on Farm is Crop of Children—Secretary Wilson and Others Made Addresses at the Morning Session.

Associated Press.

Lansing, Mich., May 31.—President Roosevelt arrived here this afternoon and addressed the great crowds of people at the semi-annual celebration of the founding of the first of the agricultural colleges of the United States.

At the morning session addresses were made by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and others.

The president spoke in part, as follows: "The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of this college is an event of national significance, for Michigan was the first state in the union to found this, the first agricultural college in America. The nation is to be congratulated on the fact that the congress at Washington has repeatedly enacted laws designed to aid the several states in establishing and maintaining agricultural and mechanical colleges. I greet all such colleges through their representatives who have gathered here today, and bid them Godspeed in their work. I no less heartily invoke success for the mechanical and agricultural schools.

As a people there is nothing in which we take a juster pride than our educational system. It is our boast that every boy and girl has the chance to get a school training; and we feel it is a prime national duty to furnish this training free, because only thereby can we secure the proper type of citizenship in the average American. Our public schools and our colleges have done their work well, and there is no class of our citizens deserving of heavier praise than the men and women who teach in them.

Nevertheless, for at least a generation we have been wanting to the knowledge that there must be additional education beyond that provided in the public school as it is managed today. Our school system has hitherto been well-nigh wholly lacking on the side of industrial training, of the training which fits a man for the shop and the farm.

We of the United States must develop a system under which each individual citizen shall be trained so to be effective individually as an economic unit and fit to be organized with his fellows so that he and they can work in efficient fashion together.

But it is a curious thing that in industrial training we have tended to devote our energies to producing high grade men at the top rather than in the ranks. Our engineering schools, for instance, compare favorably with the best in Europe, whereas we have done almost nothing to equip the private soldiers of the industrial army—the mechanic, the metal-worker, the carpenter. Indeed too often our schools train away from the shop and the forge.

No industrial school can turn out a finished journeyman, but it can furnish the material out of which a finished journeyman can be made, just as an engineering school furnishes the training which enables its graduates speedily to become engineers.

Dignity of Labor. We have been fond as a nation of speaking of the dignity of labor, meaning thereby manual labor. Personally I don't think that we begin to understand what a high place manual labor should take; and it never can take this high place unless it offers scope for the best type of man. We have tended to regard education as a matter of the head only, and the result is that a great many of our people, themselves the sons of men who worked with their hands, seem to think that they rise in the world if they get into a position where they do no hard manual work whatever; where their hands will grow soft, and their working clothes will be kept clean. Such a conception is both false and mischievous.

The calling of the skilled tiller of the soil, the calling of the skilled mechanic, should alike be recognized as professions, just as emphatically as the callings of lawyer, of doctor, of banker, merchant, or clerk. The painter, the electrical worker, the house painter, the foundry man, should be trained just as carefully as the stenographer or the drug clerk. They should be trained alike in head and in hand. They should get over the idea that to earn twelve dollars a week and call it "salary" is better than to earn twenty-five dollars a week and call it "wages."

We need the training, the manual dexterity, and industrial intelligence which can be best given in a good agricultural, or building, or textile, or watch-making, or engraving, or mechanical school.

There is but one person whose welfare is as vital to the welfare of the whole country as is that of the wage-worker who does manual labor; and that is the tiller of the soil—the farmer. If there is one lesson taught by history it is that the permanent greatness of any state must ultimately depend more upon the character of its country population than upon anything else. No growth of cities, no growth of wealth can make up for a loss in either the number or the character of the farming population.

Go Back to the Farm.

Ambitious native-born young men and women who now long away from the farm must be brought back to it, and therefore they must have social as well as economic opportunities. Everything should be done to encourage the growth in the open farming country of such institutional and social movements as will meet the demand of the best type of farmers. There should be libraries, assembly halls, social organizations of all kinds. The school building and the teacher in the school building should throughout the country districts, be of the very highest type, able to fit the boys and girls not merely to live in, but thoroughly to enjoy and to make the most of the country. The country church must be revived.

The people of our farming regions must be able to combine among themselves, as the most efficient means of meeting the industry from the highly organized interests which now surround them on every side. A vast field is open for work by co-operative associations of farmers in dealing with the relation of the farm to transportation and to the distribution and manufacture of raw materials. It is, only through such combination that American farmers can develop to the full their economic and social power.

And most important of all, I want to say a special word on behalf of the one who is too often the very hardest worked laborer on the farm—the farmer's wife. Reform, like charity, while it should not end at home, should certainly begin there; and the man, whether he lives on a farm or in a town, who is anxious to see better social and economic conditions prevail throughout the country at large, should be exceedingly careful that they prevail first as regards his own womanhood. I emphatically believe that for the great majority of women the really indispensable industry in which they should engage is the industry of the home. There are exceptions, of course; but exactly as the first duty of the normal man is the duty of being the home maker, so the first duty of the normal woman is to be the home keeper.

I have hearty sympathy with the movement to better the condition of the average tiller of the soil, of the average wage-worker, and I have an even heartier sympathy and applause for the movement which is to better the condition of their respective wives.

The Best Crop.

The best crop is the crop of children; the best products of the farm are the men and women raised thereon; and the most instructive and practical treatise on farming, necessary though they be, are no more necessary than the locks which give our duty to our neighbor, and above all to the neighbor who is of our own household.

Do not misunderstand me. I have not the slightest sympathy with those hysterical and foolish creatures who wish women to attain to easy lives by shirking their duties. I have as hearty a contempt for the woman who shirks her duty of bearing and rearing the children, of doing her full housewife's work, as I have for the man who is an idler, who shirks his duty of earning a living for himself and for his household, or who is selfish or brutal toward his wife and children. Nothing outside of home can take the place of home. The school is an invaluable adjunct to the home, but it is a wretched substitute for it. The family relation is the most fundamental, the most important of all relations. No leader in church or state, in science or art or industry, however great his achievement does work which compares in importance with that of the father and the mother, "who are the first of sovereigns and the most divine of priests."

ENGINEER SAVES MAN AND FAMILY

Barricaded in a Car Surrounded by a Mob of Infuriated Negroes When a Locomotive was Coupled to the Car and the Lives of the Imprisoned Ones Saved.

Capital Special.

Muskogee, I. T., May 31.—With a mob of maddened negroes surrounding a box car in which they had taken refuge, crying for blood to avenge one of their tribe who had been shot, T. L. Amonds and his family, a wife and two children, were saved yesterday afternoon when an engineer coupled on to the car and brought it to Muskogee from Taft.

Amonds is a bridge foreman. Yesterday his truck and in the row which followed Amonds ordered all the negroes to vacate the work cars. D. Kane would not obey the order, and it is understood, when Amonds started to force him out, attacked the foreman. After a scuffle Amonds drew a gun. It did not scare the black, who was infuriated. Amonds shot and inflicted what probably will prove to be a fatal wound.

The foreman then took refuge in the work car, with his family.

Crying "Kill him," and "Shoot them," the negroes stormed the car but could not effect an entrance. They had just desisted a way when the engineer of the work train, grasping the situation, ran his engine to the car and before the negroes knew what was doing had made the coupling and started for Muskogee.

OKLAHOMA AND COLORADO.

(From the Washington Post.)

The republican party has never shown much defect of memory, and maybe that accounts for the scheme to defer the admission of Oklahoma as a state of the union until after the next presidential election. The admission of Colorado in 1876 cost the democratic party the presidency. The three votes of the new state in the electoral college were cast for Hayes. Had Colorado been kept out, Tilden's 184 votes would have been sufficient to elect, and there would have been no contest of the vote of the disputed southern states.

The Forty-fourth congress was democratic, and over the protest of Samuel J. Randall and Eugene Hale, an appropriation was made to pay the expenses of the Colorado constitutional convention, without which the admission of the state would have been deferred.

Politics is uncertain, but it is reasonably sure that Oklahoma will be a democratic state, with seven votes in the college, if admitted in time to vote in the election of next year. Those seven votes may decide the thing, as did the three votes of Colorado thirty-two years earlier. History sometimes repeats itself. The G. O. P. is human, and it is only natural for it to file a protest against adding seven votes to the democratic column in the college of 1908. But there is another consideration. The thing would be transparent, and it would be arbitrary. Deep seated in the American character is a love of fair play, and an injury visited on Oklahoma might be resented in some other communities where republican fences are not so secure as they were.

And it is possible that is what will fetch Oklahoma into the sisterhood in time to vote at the election of 1909.

CONVENTION WILL NOT MEET AGAIN

According to Chairman Thompson of the State Central Committee There is no Necessity for Such Action—Nothing in the Constitution to Call for It.

Capital Special.

Oklahoma City May 31.—"There is no probability that the constitutional convention will be reassembled," was the statement made yesterday by J. B. Thompson, chairman of the state democratic committee, prior to his departure for his home at Pauls Valley.

The only occasion for a reconvention would be the receipt of advice from President Roosevelt and Attorney General Bonaparte to the effect that there are certain provisions in the constitution that have been framed for Oklahoma not in harmony with the federal constitution and a republican form of government; and the attorney general has already advised the committee from the convention that he has discovered nothing of that nature.

"There has been filed with the attorney general no definite protest against any of the provisions of the constitution. In case there should be, the attorney general has stated that he will advise the committee." The convention, committee members who returned from Washington Wednesday night, departed yesterday for their respective homes. W. A. Leubetter going to Ardmore, S. A. Hayes to Chickasha and G. L. Moore to Pauls Valley. They were well satisfied with the result of their visit to the national capital.

Insurrection has Broken out Forty Miles From Amoy China and Many Officials Have Been Killed—Government Sending Troops and Warships.

Associated Press.

Amoy, China, May 31.—An insurrection has broken out forty miles south of Amoy. Thirty thousand rebels are under arms.

The revolt is spreading, and the viceroys of Puchou is sending eight thousand troops to deal with the rising and war ships are expected here shortly.

Associated Press.

Washington, May 31.—The American consul at Amoy, Paddock, has cabled the state department, under date of May 28, announcing that an uprising is reported forty miles south of Amoy, that several officials have been killed by soldiers and that the origin of the trouble is unknown.

JOISTS BROKE MANY INJURED

Associated Press.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 31.—At the laying of the corner stone of St. Mary's Greek Catholic church yesterday afternoon a temporary flooring collapsed, precipitating about sixty persons into the cellar twelve feet below. Paddocks were secured and with the aid of the police the injured were removed from their perilous position. Some were able to walk to their homes, while others were removed to hospitals in ambulances.

The accident, it is said, was due to insufficient bracing beneath the new floor.

Bishop Heban of Scranton organized with a severe jolting. The priests injured were: Father Gabriel Sosny, rector of the church, bruised and injured about the body; Father Gabriel Coopy of Perth Amboy, N. J., bruised about the body and tongue badly injured; Father Kossy of Alden Pa.; Father Jamiwch of Scranton, Father Kamsky of Kingston and Father Loughran of Scranton, who suffered severe bruises and lacerations.

KILLS SISTER AND HERSELF

Associated Press.

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—It is now deemed certain that Cora Leander, aged 17, killed her invalid sister, Carrie, aged 7, and then killed herself with a revolver recovered from the creek near where the bodies were found floating, nine miles north of here.

It is believed that after Carrie was shot the body was thrown into the creek by Cora, who then shot herself and pitched forward into the water. The father of the girls, who found the bodies, said Cora had complained that the incessant care of her invalid sister was an injustice to her as it did not permit her to enjoy the companionship of other young girls. The bullet wounds were in precisely the same relative position in the temple. No other wounds were apparent.

The young girl was deaf and dumb.

SECRETARY TAFT IS FOR REVISION

The American Protective Association Tariff League Accused Him of Being a Free Trader and got a Reply for Which it was Not Looking.

Washington, May 31.—Secretary of War Taft's announcement that he favors a revision of the tariff and a reduction in some of the excessive Dingley schedules is expected to precipitate one of the biggest fights in the history of the Republican party. The matter has been brewing for some time and during the past two or three years there has been almost constant firing on the skirmish line. But now the sabote of battle is drawn and the conflict will be a decisive one.

Judge Taft's stand in favor of tariff reform is found to divide the republican party into two hostile camps, the "standpatners" and the "revisionists." There will be no feasible neutral ground. Washington's view of the situation is that Taft has effectively removed himself from the category of "Roosevelt's man Friday" and has placed himself at the head of a vital movement within his party. About the strongest argument heretofore used in Taft's behalf has been that he was the "best man to carry out Roosevelt's policies." Now he has a policy of his own, and one as vital as any advocated by Mr. Roosevelt.

It was the American Protective Association Tariff League that threw down the challenge to conflict by terming Secretary Taft a free trader and declaring that he could never be the republican nominee for president. The secretary's response was prompt and to the point. He denied that he was a free trader but announced himself as a revisionist, and declared his willingness to rise or fall on that issue. The natural effect will be for tariff revisionists in every part of the country to rally to the Taft standard. And in the contest for delegates, the tariff issue will be squarely and fairly put.

Opponents of Taft's nomination are not blind to the immense advantages he has gained. They admit the issue will have to be met, and they are agreed that the proper way to meet it is to put forward some one who stands for high protection and maintenance of the Dingley schedules. The difficulty is in agreeing who this man shall be, for here enters a clashing of ambitions. Fairbanks, Cannon, Knox, Shaw, Cretelyou, all are rated "standpatners," but all object to being termed reactionaries and opponents of Rooseveltian policies. None of them, probably, would care to risk his fortunes in a contest with Taft upon this direct issue.

The policy of the managers of the presidential boom, especially those of Fairbanks and Cannon, has been to temporize on the tariff question and avoid the direct issue. This policy, it is believed here, no longer will suffice. Undoubtedly the purpose of Taft's declaration was to cause a "show down" on the part of other candidates. Washington believes it was upon the advice of President Roosevelt that the Taft position was made clear at this time. The stroke is Rooseveltian in its every phase.

Richmond, Va., May 21.—A largely increased attendance marked the second day's session of the general United Confederate Veterans. Governor Claude A. Swanson welcomed the veterans in a fine speech. Addresses of welcome were also made by Mayor Carlton McCarthy, on behalf of the city of Richmond; Senator John W. Daniel, on behalf of the Confederate Veterans, and Senator B. B. Morgan, on behalf of the Sons of Veterans. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, delivered the response. The principal address of the day was made by Colonel Robert E. Lee, Jr., son of General W. H. F. Lee, familiarly known as "Rusty" Lee, and grandson of the famous Confederate military leader. As a member of the Virginia legislature and later a congressman, Colonel Lee has developed oratorical abilities equaled by few in the south, and his speech, a glowing tribute to the old soldiers of the lost cause, brought repeated rounds of applause.

He Is Not a Democrat. Since one virtue does not make a saint, Mr. Bryan is entirely logical in his explanation that he has never spoken of President Roosevelt as a good democrat.

Mr. Bryan has said, truly, on more than one occasion that Mr. Roosevelt has gained much popularity by recommending to congress policies heretofore considered radical. He has on other occasions indicated sets down the policies advocated by the president which differentiate him from a democrat as widely as a heretic is differentiated from an orthodox believer.

The eloquent and eloquent John Temple Graves, of Georgia, can never convince the democratic party of those United States that, when tested by the fundamental tenets of the democratic creed, Theodore Roosevelt is no better than an infidel, a beaten dead a pagan in politics.

Democrats at times disagree upon the economic application of the principles which make up their political creed; but they are of one faith in maintaining that the welfare and happiness of this country depend upon, restricting the federal government to the powers conferred upon it by the constitution, while the reserved rights of the states are jealously protected.

WESTMORLAND'S DAY OFF IS A HOODOO FOR MINERS Complete Let Down by the Favorite Lost the Game to Independence By Five to One.

A holiday crowd of spectators at League park yesterday afternoon saw Pitcher Westmoreland vainly struggle to get control of the ball while five of Independence's own chased each other across the oyster and the Miners went down to unlucky defeat with one earned tally and several more which might have been answered but were not for peculiar reasons...

At no time in his career as a slub artist was Westmoreland any more generous than on this occasion. In the first inning of play he nearly caved in Lutke's stats with a swift lashout and Collins followed with a little bingle to left, scoring Lutke, who had advanced to the third sack with a piffler and Brown's sacrifice...

The If and Why club coaxed and wheedled from the grand stand but there was nothing doing in the control line. The wily little pitcher simply had an off day and "Deacon" White made him stay in and take his medicine like a soldier. The young gentleman made a wry face at the dose and his admirers were surprised to see him "act up" so, but there was no alternative...

The batting bee which Westmoreland started in this inning with a safe fly to center, followed by McCullum's two-base hit, Pelkey's hot one through Pitcher Campbell and Jeffries' single, did nothing more than raise the hopes of the fans to a high pitch only to dash them into the dirt of despair. Here also Westmoreland was nearly thrown out trying to take two bases on Jeffries' hit, cutting off good chance to score number one, as White, the next man up, got a base on balls. A run would have been scored in...

But the Miners were down to get the only earned run in the game and it came about this way in the sixth: The hoodoo lifted for a few brief moments, McCullum rapped out a two-bagger and Jeffries sacrificed to second by Pelkey. Jeffries grabbed out. White walked with a base on balls but was put out attempting to steal second, McCullum crossing the oyster just in time. Again did the hoodoo prevail in the seventh, in fact for the remainder of the game. Campbell let down in this inning. He smote Palmer, who got first on the smite. Jegglin, another weak batter, went off a grounder but Palmer and Jegglin made the third and second stations each respectively. It looked good with Anderson and Westmoreland to follow at bat, but a fly fowl and an easy little roller to short was the best they could produce. Good news for the game, produce good news for the game...

Trouble of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weakness these organs, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. KILLED BY PITCHED BALL. Amateur Player Meets Death While Standing at the Plate. Cleveland, O., May 31.—"Great heavens, has it come to this," exclaimed Joe Goldsoll, chief of the city park police, last night when told that the minnows would attack his stand on spooning in the public parks at their weekly meeting tomorrow. "Are the dearest rights of the American people to be abridged in this summary manner? I want to call the preachers' attention to a clause in the declaration of independence which says that all men are created free and equal, endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. When the framers of that famous document were at work on that clause they must have had in view the pastime of hugging in the parks. "Hugging is certainly the pursuit of happiness. "Truly, hugging is soul-inspiring; there is just about so much of it to be done and the preachers should remember that many persons have not the facilities at home for such soul-stirring work and they are obliged to flee to the parks, where a beneficent government has provided all modern improvements."

When asked about his boom Secretary Taft said that was a personal matter. Not if Foraker knows it.

The "fans" are not worrying over the route, but they do want to see that car line completed to the ballpark.

If it be true that the president loves a fighter, he evidently has for Dr. Long a secret admiration which he is too contrary to admit.

The rich visitors to the battle ships, who just plainly stole all valuables in sight, would be indignant were they classed as kleptomaniacs. They are souvenir hunters, so eminently respectable, you know.

The doctors and druggists in their constant search for mystifying words almost cheered themselves when the city council of St. Louis asked for bids for hospital supplies, including two pounds of hexamethylenetetramine.

ROOSEVELT AND THE RAILROADS.

But for fear of being charged with less majesty, one might say that the president is becoming commonplace in his public speeches. With that love for the limelight, and constant playing to the galleries, the word was allowed to slip out from the white house, betrayed, no doubt by some member of the Ananias club, that on the occasion of his Decoration Day address at Indianapolis the president would just simply tear things all to pieces. Glaring headlines told in all of the papers of the country that Wall street magnates were hurrying to Washington in an effort to have the president modify his speech lest there be a financial panic immediately following the delivery of his terrible railway-stocks-and-bonds-wrecking declarations.

The story is correctly given in his own words when well through his address he said, "I have told you all this many times before." And so he had. In his public and private talk and in his messages he has "holered" at the railroad people until they think it only a false cry of "wolf" and refuse to longer be frightened thereby.

In fact, he asked but little which the laws do not now already provide, and if there is anything for the manipulators of railroad securities to fear it is the enforcement of these laws. In this the president was very firm in his determination to see all wrong doors brought to book. But the republicans have been talking this way ever since the enactment of the Sherman law against the trusts, but protected monopolies and immense campaign funds continue as of old.

Really the president's speech was novel only in the selection of the occasion for turning it loose. The men who "wore the blue" have learned to look on this day as the holy of holies, a day of reverence, when everything should give way to the discussion of their deeds of valor and the heritage following therefrom. The president shocked them, for he dismissed them with but few lines and talked columns about what wicked fellows the railroad magnates were.

He very sensibly told the latter they must get more cars and more locomotives to carry the tonnage of the country, that they must quit giving rebates and try and carry more freight and more passengers at lower rates. He also gave them some good advice about keeping their lawyers out of politics.

The only real danger point suggested by the president might be found in that part of his address referring to physical valuation of railroads. If valuation for taxation and for stock selling and dividend paying purposes were equalized, there would probably not be much trouble even over this part of what he suggests. That the speech was commonplace, might be repeated and it might also be added that the thorough whipping of "Pete" has evidently affected the potency of the "big stick."

If the cartoonists keep up their present gait, Secretary Taft will soon be known as the man with a smile. There is a faint suspicion that Foraker, Fairbanks and Cannon are not getting a fair deal before the camera.

The millers in convention at St. Louis realized the truthfulness of the saying about the little things of life being the ones to make the trouble. It was stated that rats annually destroy grain to the value of one hundred million dollars.

The board of food and drug inspection of the department of agriculture at Washington has been worrying for a week trying to find out what is "succotash." It is wonderful how much these boards with long sounding titles do not know.

At the reunion in Richmond yesterday were Mrs. "Stonewall" Jackson, Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart and Miss Mary Custis Lee, greeting the veterans. The shadow over the pleasure of these reunions is that a few more years will end it all. Time is making inroads on the ranks of those who were in the center of the picture during the days of the civil war.

Several days ago the capital called attention to the advisability of holding a monster Fourth of July celebration in this city and it now looks like this will be brought about, as a mass meeting of the business men has been called for the purpose of organizing and getting to work. With plenty of amusement afforded and with the proper advertising, a crowd of twenty thousand can be brought here on that date and so well entertained that they will all want to come again.

Men who are holding office in the new state and feel they can continue so to do as long as statehood is held off, and the republicans continue in control of the national government, are now smiling satisfactorily, thinking they have won first blood in the contest before the republican attorney general. What care they for the suffering of a struggling people for they hold their fat places and draw their salaries.

In his speech at St. Louis yesterday Secretary Taft must have labored under the impression that the millers have flour to sell to the Filipinos for he devoted the most of his time trying to prove that the Philippines acquisition was a good investment for this nation and would clinch the argument by showing what an excellent market the islands are for the American producer, but he forgot to show that the American people have been not only paying the freight but the purchase price also for about all the products going there.

There is, after all, such a thing as riding a free horse to death. Secretary Loeb has stood for so much at the white house in bearing the sins of omission and commission of the president that he is going to quit. Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, is having more trouble over a case of contraband wine sent his holiness than did Secretary Loeb about one of beer sent the president, when the W. C. T. U. found it out, and it is stated he will resign. Now comes the secretary of Governor Folk who is mad because he is charged with losing his chief's invitation to the millers convention and threatens to take to the streets. The troubles of the private secretary would make a book, or a play.

Another Political Question

GLEANINGS

"Bah for Casey.
Oh, you all have heard of Mudville, heard of mighty Casey, too; Of the groans amid the bleachers As the ball chiroc past him flew; But you haven't heard the story, The best story of them all, Of the happy day in Mudville, When great Casey slugged the ball.

'Twas the day they played the Giants, And the score stood ten to eight; Two men were on the bases, And great Casey at the plate. "Swipe her Casey," yelled the rooster, And the hero doffed his cap; Three to win and two to tie, And Casey at the bat.

'Mid a hush of expectation, Now the ball flies past his head; Great Casey grins a sickly grin; "Strike one!" the umpire said. Again the pitcher raised his arm, Again the hero raised his head, And the umpire said, "Strike two."

"It's a roast," came from the grandstand, "He is bought without a doubt!" "He is rotten!" roared the bleachers, "Throw the daylight robber out!" "I'll break yer face," says Casey, "That one went below me knee; "If I miss the next, ye blackguard, "Ye won't live long to see."

The next one came like lightning, And the umpire held his breath, For well he knew if Casey missed, 'T would surely mean his death; But Casey swung to meet it, Backed by all his nerve and gait; Oh, if you had but heard the yell, As Casey smashed the ball!

He caught the pliskin on the nose, He cleared the big town lot, It sailed above the high church tower In vain the fielders sought; And Casey didn't stop to think, He stopped awhile to talk, And then amid the deafening cheers He came round in a walk.

And now he keeps a neat saloon, He is mayor of the town, The people flock to see him From all the country round; And you need not look for Mudville On the map upon the wall, Because the town's called Caseyville Since Casey slugged the ball.

A Live Wire.
The young son of an electrician was spending his first summer in the country, at the home of his grandparents, says Lippincott's Magazine. One morning, while playing in the garden, he found a small yellow "bug," and as his grandfather had promised to take him fishing that afternoon, he decided to catch it to use as bait. A few seconds later a most astonishing commotion, considering the size of the cause thereof, arose in the garden, and grandmother hurried out from the house.

"Why, what is the matter, child?" she asked, taking the little fellow in her arms. "He raised a tear-stained face, "I don't know," was the reply, "I was catching a pretty yellow bug, and it must have touched a live wire."

A Business Opportunity.
We all in time the dust must bite. Accordingly, I say A brand of dust made germless quite, With labels fresh and prices right Assuredly would pay.

We all a peak of dirt must eat. And, therefore, I assure 'T would pay to put up cartons neat; And advertise by page and sheet. A good aseptic dirt. —Washington Herald.

Pointed Paragraphs.
Gentle spring has a tough job getting the lid off.

Ignorance that pays looks like wisdom to some people. As an heir, a female may eventually come to some people. First the courtship, then the marriage, then the tug of war. Unless a woman loves wisely her husband isn't loved any too well. Two hearts that beat as one are usually on the lookout for number one. If love makes the world go round, earthquakes must be the result of matrimony.—Chicago News.

Mother of Twenty-one.
Capital Special.
Baltimore, Md., May 31.—The mother of twenty-one children, ten of whom are today alive and hearty, Mrs. Annie Rebecca McNeal Lycott, wife of Retired Engineer Michael Lycott, formerly of the Baltimore fire department, died this morning at her residence, 1512 Henry street, at the age of fifty-five years. The immediate cause of her death is attributed to heart failure.

Jail and Fine for a Kiss.
Capital Special.
Norfolk, Va., May 31.—For attempting to kiss Mrs. Nellie Theodor, cashier in a Main street electric theater, Peter Yerkontakis, a Greek, today in police court was found guilty fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve thirty days in the city jail. He made an appeal.
