Obituary of "Jim"

Suppose you will all wonder who "Jim" is, well Jim was O. R. Whiteburg's great "goon" dog. All our knowledge of Dogology failed to determine the cause of his "dogship's" death, but Jim is dead and Mr. Coon postum look for an easy winter.

Alexander Lout of Adamson, candidate for Constable on the Republican ticket was in the city Saturday and gave the Advertiser an order for some cards.

Camel Messaro has started to remodel his property on Washington avenue and when finished will make a neat and comfortable home.

Robert, the 2 year old son of Robert Watson, Jr., has been very sick with the measles and dysentery, but is somewhat improved at this writing.

Miss Grace Watson finished her course at the Normal, Wednesday, last.

Chas. Hokey, sr., candidate for Constable in the 3rd district has been visiting through the district in the interest of himself and other Democratic candidates. Mr. Hokey is a party worker and reports prospects bright for success in a primary in August, and chafes a good Democratic victory by November for all the ticket. Mr. Hokey knows the needs of the district from A to Z and if elected will try to give all a fair show throughout the county.

Reports received from Mrs. Robert Watson who is visiting friends in the east say that she is well and enjoying her visit very much.

Miss Grace Douglas, Hedrietta Powell, West and Katie Church are attending school daily, under professor S. P. Suggett. That's right girls, work hard, it will bear fruit in the near future.

Wallace Bond, candidate for county clerk on the Democratic ticket was in the city yesterday and gave the office yesterday. He says he is about tired of flipping the tissues in a freight office and selling county bonds to all men of the world, and thinks he will try, and work for Pittsburg county the coming four years if he has good luck to make the bond. There is success in hard work.

There was no meeting of the city council Monday night on account of the death of Councilman O'Williams' father. Adjourned until next Monday night.

Murry Powell is canvassing the Lawrence, Kan. nurseries. This is first class stock for this climate, there being hardly any failures from this nursery. See him and give him an order.

Don't forget the "Big Lot" sale at North McAlester next Saturday. Free lot given away. See small bills.

Mr. John O'Toole says they have nearly completed the new school for 1910. This is quick work for a force of two men where every roll returned by the assessors of the county first class made up. This quick business is no easy task and Mr. Toole and his force have made a record for hard work this year. Mr. Toole is candidate for re-election, but will be unable to make a canvass on account of the duties of his office requiring his personal attention constantly. Therefore will have to rely upon the good record and his friends to make the canvass for him.

The Krebs Realty Co. sold two lots on John Gronow in block 94 to Nicholas Astor on Monday last Monday. Mr. Dyracolina will build a house.

Mrs. Harrison Meets Accident

Mrs. C. W. Harrison had the misfortune to break one of the bones in her left ankle last Saturday while returning from Montoya. Mr. Harrison was at the wheel of the automobile, speeding along at a lively gait when the front wheel dropped into a rut, causing his son, about five years of age to make a high dive out of the auto, and landing in the grass, being greatly concerned as to the fate of the young man, alighted from the car before it was brought to a standstill with the above painful result. The young colt which was dug out from among the weeds without a scratch. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stiles are cousins of Mr. Harrison. He visited them about two weeks ago, but has not returned to the International Bank at Tucacarril, New Mexico.

Several of the friends of Mr. Wm. O'Williams gave her a very nice surprise last Thursday evening when they stepped in to spend the evening and celebrate Mrs. Williams' birthday afternoon.

J. H. Linebaugh of Atoka, Okla., Democratic candidate for Judge of Criminal Court of Appeals, Eastern district primary August 2, 1910. Mr. Linebaugh is 48 years of age, a native of the state of Kentucky, has been actively engaged in the practice of law for more than twenty years. About 25 years ago Mr. Linebaugh suffered a stroke of paralysis, affecting the external muscles of the body, making away from him the power to walk, and he has to get around on a roll chair. By reason of this he would be very expensive for him to make a canvass of his district as he would need an attendant constantly.

Mr. Linebaugh is endorsed by every member of the bar of Atoka county, regardless of politics. Mr. Linebaugh should receive a rousing majority from all parties, as he is a highly legal talent for the position, and also he can place him in a position suitable to his abilities. Mr. Gore has made good in the senate. Mr. Cochran as reglator of deeds, will make no mistake in placing him on the bench.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Strange Inventions at Patent Office

WASHINGTON—Labor-saving devices are always in demand; the thousand inventors of this country are all devoting 99 per cent of their time to producing such things, each in the hope of winning for himself fame and fortune, cash and credit. A patent attorney the other day in Washington.

One of the strangest of these schemes to lighten the world's work is a patent recently obtained by an ingenious person in Des Moines. It is called the self-tipping hat, and is designed to save the popular person from the fatiguing labor of removing his hat every time he meets one of the fair sex with whom he is acquainted.

Much valuable energy is utilized in tipping the hat, repeatedly, says the inventor, and my device will relieve one of it and at once cause the hat to be lifted from the head in a natural manner. It is a novel device, in other words, for effecting polite salutations by the elevation and rotation of the hat on the head of the saluting party, when said person bows to the person saluted, the actuation of the hat being produced by mechanism within it, and without the use of the hands in any manner.

"No truly rural person ever could have been responsible for the invention of eyeglasses for chickens, which was patented by United States patents recently. The glasses are modeled much after the fashion of grandpa's specs; the nose rest being changed to cover the chicken's beak, while the ear loops are joined in the back.

"No claim is made that the chicken's eyesight is poor, or that, in fact, eyeglasses are needed; it may be the better discover the 'faintest worm or insect' which the chicken is to prevent chickens pecking out each other's eyes. The inventor's attempt to enforce all chickens to wear the device by legislative action in Kansas did not succeed, I may say.

"Members of secret societies, who sometimes may be put to much trouble to secure a sufficiently frail goat for the purpose of introducing members to their respective lodges, will be glad to learn that the inventive genius of America has come to their assistance. The device is a mechanical goat, which can be put in the closet when not needed; that requires little room and practically no care. Also, it may be handled by its keeper without fear of consequences.

"The candidate, blindfolded, is led to the side of the animal, and on it he takes his seat, placing his feet in stirrups on either side. As the goat is pushed about the lodgeroom a series of wheels and rods, geared to the wheels which it runs, causes the animal to buck and rear in a fearful manner, keeping the candidate in continual danger of being shaken off.

How One Senator Viewed the Comet

Though Adam Monroe Byrd has been in four congresses, he made one of these in the year 1876. Byrd was making a tariff speech. He comes from Mississippi, and, of course, he thinks the present tariff is about the worst bill that could have been framed. He reached the wooden scholar, and he went up and down the aisle, directly addressing first one member and then another. Byrd paused at a desk occupied by a small man with a Van Dyke beard. Byrd looked to this small man that the woolen schedule was vicious. The small man nodded sympathetically. Byrd pointed the small man's desk

"Knowing all the things I have said to be true, why did you vote for this schedule?" Byrd demanded of the small man.

"I did not vote for it."

"You mean to tell this house that you did not vote for the tariff bill?"

"I do," said the small man.

"Well," said Byrd, "I admire you for your convictions."

"By his side, the small man was splitting his lips. The small man was Robert C. Carter, a Democrat and, who, equally, of course, did not vote for the Payne bill.

Oklahoma Kids See Sights of Capital

THE unusual privilege of the floor of the house of representatives was granted to Louis and Temple Abernathy, sons of United States Marshal Jack Abernathy of Frederick, Okla., a few days ago. The boys, who are nine and six respectively, rode their ponies from their home in Oklahoma to New York, where they were to meet their friend, Colonel Roosevelt. On their way they stopped in Washington for a few days.

and flocked around them.

"How do you like Washington?" the speaker asked the youngsters.

"Really," said the boys, who used some White House slang.

"Well, my lads," said the speaker, "this city belongs to 50,000,000 of people. You own just as much of it as Andrew Carnegie or John D. Rockefeller."

The baby deputy marshal looked very important. He gazed longingly out of the window as much as to say that if he could have his share he would take the Washington monument.

"How much do you ride?" asked the speaker.

"Oh, forty or fifty miles a day," answered the wolf-catcher's son.

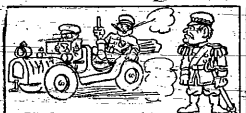

"You kids! You mean a week," said the speaker. The Abernathys looked bored.

"Now," they said, "a day. We make 50 miles a day easy."

"But the army cost," said Uncle Joe, "that's 30 miles in linea days."

But they couldn't help themselves, because he was entitled to certain leaves, and when he got them he was given the liberty to ride his balloon if he so chose.

Then, to cap the climax, one night there was a ball at a swapper down town hotel. It was given by members of the "set" in which the young soldier had been wont to move. He was invited and he went. The officers cast many icy stares his way, but he let them go. So far there has been a lot of talk in circles now at Fort Myer, but there has been no action. It is sad to see a girl-bird's heart to see a thing like this and to be able to do nothing about it.

LITTLE KNOWN DISTRICT

CALIFORNIA STAGE ROAD

IN THE quiet succeeding the uproar of the Nevada, there began a subtle protest plan for recognition from a comparatively unknown region of northern California.

One of the most promising of these districts is that comprising the western portion of Humboldt and Del Norte and the northern part of Trinity—a compact area approximately 2,500 square miles. The Klamath, the Scott, the Salmon—the north and south forks of the last named—and the New River traverse this territory.

Geographically, this district divides itself into three sections—the "Klamath," and the "Salmon," the "New River." Mineralogically there are but two sections, the "Klamath" and the "Salmon," the "New River" lying immediately south of and its formation being identical with that of the "Klamath."

In the Klamath, the base ores—iron, copper and zinc—predominate, in the "Salmon" occur free milling gold ores almost exclusively, with no base.

The "Salmon," properly so called, extends from the Salmon mountains summit to the east approximately thirty miles west into Humboldt county, and from just north of the North Fork of the Salmon river south 20 miles to the Trinity mountains summit, where the "New River" section begins.

This great belt has been divided into three sections, including "New River," the "most" being merely a matter of convenience. A very small portion has been fairly prospected, but there has been nothing approaching intelligent and systematic underground exploration been carried out.

The prevailing rocks are those of California's mother lode, and of Nevada—metaphoric and granitic slates (including mariposite) and quartzite and granite. The quartzite, excepting the character of the vein matter, is identical in character, structure and contained matter, with that of the last region named, where deep workings have demonstrated the permanency of such veins in these enclosing rocks, and also the important fact that the ore's free milling character persists to great depth. The ores of the "Salmon," as has been said, are almost wholly free-milling, usually carrying one to three per cent of high grade concentrates in the form of iron pyrites, galena and zinc blende.

Many veins of this section are blind, or nearly so, cropping only at intervals and then to no great extent, which accounts, somewhat, for the retarded development. In the nature of things this condition is to be expected. The surface is exceedingly rugged, heavily timbered and usually carries a heavy cover of talus and soil.

All this is its ultimate advantage, as it implies unlimited timber supply water under high heads, and the possibility of mining by tunnel instead of by shaft.

The creeks and rivers of the Salmon have a recorded gold production of over $25,000,000. (Siskiyou record approximates $150,000,000.) Very nearly all this has been produced without capital other than the labor of the miners engaged and the very limited financial means at their command. In other words, this section has developed by its own resources. Hydraulic and placer mining is still usually carried on by the crude methods of fifty years ago, or at least with inadequate equipment. On the main streams there is yet available considerable ground suitable for the dredger or elevator and for hydraulic mining.

Adjoining the "Salmon" on the north, extending to within a few miles of the Klamath river, approximately 30 miles, and from the Marble mountains summit on the east to beyond the Humboldt county line on the west for 15 miles to or beyond the Oregon line, and from the vicinity of Gotsville on the east 65 miles to the west, the Del Norte county line on the west. The Siskiyou range traverses it from east to west, its summit, whose trend is irregular, lying six to twelve miles north of the Humboldt district.

The "Klamath" prevailing rocks are the crystalline slates and schists, overlying diorite and gabbro. Lime rock, granite and serpentines are present to a less extent. On Indian creek is found possibly the only commercial exploited deposit of feldspar in the continent.

The "Klamath" ores, as before noted, are chiefly base iron, copper and zinc-bearing. Copper predominates, varying in grade, but just east of the surface indications of it extending gossan outcrops, outcrops of slate or schist heavily stained with iron or copper and the same and requires are filled with copper-bearing mineral.

The entire territory herein treated is heavily timbered, making an inexhaustible supply of timber conveniently available for mining and all purposes. The numerous perennial streams render available water under high heads for direct application in power for generating electricity for transmission.

Within the territory described land suitable for cultivation is practically unknown, except along the Klamath river where a number of fine, large tracts are located, but just east of the Salmon mountains line Scott valley, a very fertile and productive section, whence subsistence supplies are drawn. The road into the "Salmon" is a good mountain highway and freight charges are reasonable.

Finally Found a Food That Cured Her.

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to secure some," says a woman in Salisbury, Mo. "At that time there was none kept in this town, but my husband ordered some from a Chicago traveler."

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained only temporary relief. As soon as I began to use the new food the cramps disappeared and have never returned."

"My old attacks of sick stomach were a little slower to yield, but by continuing the food, that trouble has disappeared entirely. I am today perfectly well, can eat anything and everything I wish, without paying the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts."

"My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his friends and has been making a very large trade on the food. He sells them by the case to many of the leading physicians of the county, who recommend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientifically prepared food."

RAILROAD BILL SIGNED BY TAFT

FINAL ACTION ON STATEHOOD LEGISLATION ALSO TAKEN

VICTORY FOR PRESIDENT

Not Definitely Known When Arizona and New Mexico Will Come into Union—Constitutions of New States Must Meet Approval

Washington, President Taft signed the railroad bill at 1:15 o'clock Saturday night shortly after his return from the White House. The measure, which had accompanied the statehood bill, had been passed by the house Saturday and sent immediately to the White House. The president did not sign the statehood bill.

The railroad bill was the first to receive consideration in the house Saturday. Chairman Mann of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce called the measure to report from the speaker's table. His speeches were made after being being several by Democrats in expression of their opposition to the bill. Final action on statehood legislation was accomplished with greater ease.

By reason of pressure from the White House, and aided by some diplomatic work by Postmaster General Clegg, opposition to the acceptance of the senate amendment to the statehood bill were almost entirely dissipated.

It cannot be stated definitely when Arizona and New Mexico will come into the union under this legislation. It requires that the constitutions adopted by the proposed states must be ratified by congress and approved by the president. Considering that the statehood bill will be in force within a few days, it will be necessary for the territories to hold constitutional conventions, will require many weeks, submit the constitutions to the people of the territories for adoption and then return them to Washington. It is impossible, therefore, to specify when the people of the two territories will enjoy the benefits of statehood, and many believe that it will not be before the presidential election of 1912.

The railroad bill is substantially in accordance with the president's message demanding amendments to the interstate commerce laws. About the only exceptions are that it does not legalize holding agreements made by railroads to permit mergers or regulate the issuance of stocks and bonds. It creates a commerce court and broadens the scope of the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission, as regards regulations and practices by railroads. It also brings telegraph, telephone and cable companies within that jurisdiction.

Supervision is given to the commission over increases of rates, and this section, as well as one making provision for the investigation of the stock and bond question, will go into effect immediately on the bill's being signed. Other provisions, and they are extensive, will take effect within sixty days from the date of approval.

A posse is out after the burglars.

NEW LAWS NOW IN FORCE

INCLUDES MAJORITY OF BILLS PASSED BY SPECIAL SESSION

Election Measures and Grandfather Clause Opposed by Republicans—Petition Filed Referring Them to the People

Guthrie, Okla.—All bills passed by the special session of the legislature of 1910 which did not have the emergency clause attached ended their day probation Saturday and became laws of the state of Oklahoma. The most important of these measures are the election laws; revenue laws, fee and salary law and several others of importance and a number not of such general interest.

Against the election laws, however, the republicans have started the referendum. That is, have already filed petitions referring them to the people for ratification or rejection. These referred bills do not become effective in some cases. The Bryan general election law is one of these, and since it is tied up there is considerable question whether Oklahoma has any general election law whatever. Attorney General West holds that by the repeal of the 1909 election law, known as the "Taylor Election Law," and the tying up of the 1910 law by the referendum petitions, the two repeated 1907-1908 election law is resurrected and in force.

The other measures referred by the republicans are the senate resolution suggesting the initiation of the "grandfather clause" amendment to the constitution, which many democrats contend, not being a law, but merely a legislative suggestion, is not subject to the referendum; and the Taylor bill of 1910, providing new methods of holding elections under the initiative and referendum. This last bill contains provisions for a special ballot which the republicans contend is intended solely to give a majority for the "grandfather clause," and for this reason they refer it.

It is questionable, however, whether the referendum can be invoked against this last bill, since the constitution expressly provides that measures relative to the initiative and referendum become effective without the emergency, and the democrats contend this bill was law when the governor signed it three months ago.

Other bills not bearing the emergency and which became laws have the following measures: A bill repealing the 1909 Taylor election law, railroad tax bill, corporation license tax bill, county excise board bill, remodeled gross revenue bill. The last four bills were Governor Haskell's revenue program for the special session. A bill appropriating $45,000 for the Fort Gibson blind school; appropriation of $200,000 for another wing to the state penitentiary; a number of minor appropriation bills, including one of $60,000 for the corporation commission and attorney general for the defense of the two-cent rate; Senator Harrison's bill providing for a city school board election bill; a new weights and measures law requiring the labeling of conical pipe rods; providing for a vice chief justice of the supreme court; the confederate home bill; the anti-usury bill; a new lease law for school lands; validating bond issues; investment of sinking funds; and a number of local bills and measures of less importance.

REVOLUTIONISTS IN MEXICO

Arms and Ammunition Being Smuggled Across Border

Cananea, Mexico.—The premature discovery of smuggled arms and ammunition followed by the arrest of leaders of the discontented faction and the proclamation of martial law in Cananea and other border towns, probably has checked and discouraged a serious outbreak against the Mexican government scheduled for election day, June 26.

The revolutionary movement originated among the young element of Northern Mexico, followers of General Berthier, General Lopez, and General Madero, founders of the present, under arrest in Monterey on the charge of causing crowds to form. The discontented faction demand political liberty, free speech and the "right to vote."

STATE NEWS

GETS BIG COTTON MILL

Million Dollar Factory to Be Built in Oklahoma City

Oklahoma City—With the issuance of an incorporation certificate by Secretary of State Bill Cross to the Oklahoma Bag and Cotton Mills corporation, the first step was taken so the incorporators and promoters claim for the up-building of an industrial suburb northeast of the city and the building and operation of a million dollar cotton mill and bag factory which will employ possibly 500 people to add to Oklahoma City's industrial and commercial wealth.

This great enterprise has been under consideration for several months and all of the plans possible for its fruition have been made after numerous conferences, the quiet vice of which was eastern capitalists and cotton industry men to an Oklahoma City and the erection of a local plan of cooperation. The Oklahoma Bag and Cotton Mills corporation begins business with a capital stock of $1,000,000, the state being entitled in the sum of $100,000 as for the necessary papers. The incorporators are M. L. Berry, formerly of South Carolina and now of Oklahoma City; F. J. Ross, of Lawrence, Okla.; Geo. W. S. C. and R. G. Gaines, of Central, S. C.

WILL BUILD LABOR TEMPLE

Organization is Perfected at Meeting of Oklahoma City Union

Oklahoma City—The labor union convention, where all unions comprising the Oklahoma City Trades Council met for the purpose of organizing a Labor Temple Building association, has closed its final meeting. The chief result of the convention was the perfection of an active organization to superintend the construction of a Labor Temple in Oklahoma City. The new organization will be known as the Oklahoma City Labor Temple association, which will be chartered and capitalized at $100,000. The association will devise ways and means for the raising of funds for the purchase of a suitable location in the business district for the erection of a temple, and then proceed with construction. Several methods of raising funds have been suggested for the project will be the sale of Labor Temple building shares to the recently distributed chapter booster buttons.

Stock in the new temple will be floated, though no individual will be permitted to invest in same. All stock must be held by the various constituent unions of the Trades Council. It is probable that individuals will be personally assessed by the unions to which they belong, though this matter has been made optional with the separate unions.

MORGAN WANTS MORE MONEY

Representative is Dissatisfied With Amount Appropriated

Washington, D. C.—Representative Morgan is dissatisfied with the amount of money appropriated in the house for the Oklahoma City federal building. He feels that smaller cities have been better treated. This is also shown in the tentative appropriations for buildings in Oklahoma, made public Thursday. Mr. Morgan wants $10,000 more for the purchase of 2000 material for Oklahoma City's building. The appropriations for Oklahoma, as agreed upon, follow: El Reno, $100,000; Kingfisher, $50,000; Blackwell, $50,000; Ardmore, $150,000; Lawton, $152,300; Muskogee, $340,000; Guthrie, $125,000; or a total of $1,147,300. It is also possible that the limit of cost of the Ardmore building may be raised to $187,000, as the senate has already passed a bill appropriating this amount for that city.

BIG OIL COMPANY CHARTERED

Tulsa Company With $3,000,000 Capital Takes Out Charter

Oklahoma City—The Premier Petroleum company, probably the largest and wealthiest independent concern of its kind in the state, has been granted a charter by Secretary of State Bill Cross. The company has a total capital of $3,000,000 and intends to operate exclusively in Oklahoma. The state fee for filing of one-tenth of one per cent amounts to $3,000. This is one of the largest fees ever received by the state for granting a corporation a charter. President Crosbie of the company, when called at Tulsa, refused to give out any information concerning the detailed plans of the company or of the fields in which it will operate, but it is significant that he is the mid-continent representative of the Holland syndicate which controls about a million dollars' worth of oil leases in the vicinity of Tulsa. Much Tulsa capital is also involved and the fact that this large corporation will operate as an independent company points to an increasing keenness in the war among Oklahoma oil interests.
